THE GALLOWS.

Three Missouri Murderers Pay The Penalty of Their Crimes.

How They Met Their Fate.—The Closing Scenes.

Graphic History of Their Crime.—Their Arrest, Trial and Conviction.

John W. Patterson Hanged at Clinton for a Murder Committed for Purposes of Robbery Thirteen Years Ago.

One of the Most Interesting Cases in the Annals of Crime.

Scenes and Incidents Photographed by Evening Star Reporters.

THE TALBOTT'S.

Swung Off.

THE LAW INSTITUTED.

[Special Telegram to The Evening Star.]

Maryville, Mo., July 22—The Talbott boys were hanged at 2 p. m.

A Village Tale.

TO PE HANGED AND DRAWN.

As the popular saying goes "bad the story of Joe A. Jesse from father to son and son to grandson, the story will be passed down to posterity of this little town in Northwest Missouri, of the murder of by his two sons, Charles I. and Albert E., who to-day pay the penalty of their terrible crime.

MR. MILES G. DR. TALBOTT

The tale is not an inviting one, surely, yet on relation to the circumstances which led to the commission of the crime or rendering it the subject of a thrilling interesting and sensational tale of the conspiracy

Its Narrative.

A full OF PERSONAL HISTORY will not certainly mark the reader in looking of the past. Miles G. Talbott, the murdered man, was an old resident of Nodaway county, and owned by the community, not only for his professional ability but also for his generosity. He came to our west in the days of the pioneer troubles, and after the war settled in Independence county, Mo., where he became the Missouri legislature, and in 1872 ran for congress on the Independent ticket against Colonel Rice, and lost by a majority of 1,000 votes, because identified with the greenback movement, and urged his opinions with force and ability. He was a strong supporter of the greenback idea, and declared his belief that he dying moments declared his belief that he had been assassinated for his advocacy of

THE NATIONAL BANKS.

Dr. Talbott was an eccentric, he was known he was for several years before his death, a frequent subject of greenbackism. His family support himself to bring his assertion that he believed himself to have been a victim for the greenback idea. Dr. Talbott was extensed by the community, and has in the wave in his psychic life to [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] of his home he was affable, [illegible] and [illegible] the public [illegible] and [illegible] was the very [illegible] of his fact more than any other may be attributed his untimely fate.

Joe Jesse said to some friends that he was [illegible] and a [illegible] a [illegible] brilliant, his [illegible] educated, refined, at times [illegible] and [illegible] his [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE GALLOWS.

(Continued from First Page.)

just big enough for him to turn through, he just raised his old gun and through, and ran around on the east side of the house and slipped the gun under the kitchen door, ran round to the front side of the house, and as Tillbert was coming out of the middle door and had the dead gun, he ran to meet him and he shot him in the breast and he fell and died at him, when he was about thirty-five yards off.

PLUGGED THE OLD FELLAW

Mitchell stated, "How did you get back into the kitchen without any one knowing it?" He replied, "I had been around on the street, and about turn around the smoke-house and ran up stairs and woke Ed up, at that not came out and called for the boys."

The next evening they were down there to Ford's place, and I was overhauled as before, when Mitchell asked, "Look here, Wyatt, there has got to be something done now." Wyatt asked, "What do you mean?" Mitchell replied, "Why, it is all said, "I will write to an old friend of mine in Kansas, and he will tell me what I ought to do best thing we can do." Wyatt said, "If he can do any good, we better be doing it, for we got to save ourselves, that's certain." Mitchell said, "I believe Ford has taken a notion he is to get even with me, and he is to kill him or me, or the other." Wyatt said, "We've got to have some one to do the job." Mitchell said, "I've a man in Kansas who is just the man we want. I've talked with him a little about it." Wyatt said, "Write to him, and let him know." Mitchell replied, "I'll write to him in Jonesville, Ind. I've been acquainted with him one, two, and when he comes there and then we'll have things just as we want it, he'll have to get in with the boys, though, that will be the first thing." Wyatt replied "It's a good one if it isn't take long for him to get in with the boys." Mitchell said, "Wyatt, I'm one little year after him." Wyatt, "Really," Mitchell replied, "We ought let on like we know him, if we do that he will come in, and we will have a good time and all away, you must be very cautious and not say a word or let on you ever saw him." Wyatt replied, "I will be as cautious as I can or reason."

WE'LL HAVE THE WHOLE BANK IN IT,

Mitchell stated the three days after, said he came from Kansas and hired out to me. He told me about having and asked me to come and let the boys be rented." He became intimate with Wyatt, Ford, Tillbert, Carr and Lime Gingery, and I heard many conversations between them where they planned to kill the member on to Ed, and me. They wanted the Sandsfield for the robbery." Wyatt said, "Let us wait Wyatt, Mitchell and the others were to swear to. Wyatt said he then promise to see that he was paid for it." Mitchell said, "I'm go with Wyatt and make his confession and used to be in a big robbery." Wyatt said, "I'll get off on them, and to get them in a big, planned to

A PRETTY SISTER

FOR THE HOPKINS BANK.

Mitchell, Wyatt and Tillbert signed a contract with me to go into it, Wyatt and Tillbert was to give warning. The next morning we were arrested for Hopkins for the murder. Wyatt stated to Ed that he would want to give him $100, but had paid him nothing. He said he threw the gun in Forrest ford."

After the Hopkins probable story the boys said they felt relieved.

Public sentiment.

THE LAST CONFESSION FALLS FLAT.

(Special Telegram to The Evening Star.)

Marysville, Mo., July 22.—The Talbott case has presented many interesting and novel features. Confession has followed confession, and a statement statement, each pronouncing all who knew anything of the murder, and there is no doubt in the public mind to believe anything that has been said. The last report is that a fearful crime was perpetrated in the house of the Talbotts, and by some member of the household. There is a very general feeling that the killing was among the members of the family, and that the truth has not been told. Whether this belief is true or not, it is certain that the boys, and all the prisoners since their trial, and their so-called confessions, insist of it being a big in cited this feeling.

THE RESULT OF A CONSPIRACY

THE EXCITEMENT

is not intense. A large number of people are in the city. Large crowds flock at about the jail all day, but few gaining sight of the boys and those who do, find the prisoners in a state bordering on a stupor. Wyatt and Tillbert were seen outside to-day. It is strange to note the expression of the boys, they seem to gain good positions to witness the execution. Many relatives their posts during the night, and being provided with lunch baskets, intend there to so remain in the public mind to believe anything that has been said. The